You must know, of course, that a fine car is more than merely a means of fine travel. It is, as the psychologists tell us, an extension of a man's own personality. It reflects what you feel, what you like, what you are.

So we ask you to take the wheel of a Buick ROADMASTER like the one shown here-for it is, we have found, the automobile chosen more and more by those who are definitely moving ahead in the world.

You will find it a car that fairly breathes success.

From its size and its breadth and the magnificent modernity of its styling, you know it is a car of custom stature - and so does the watching world.

The wondrous windshield is a pride in itself. You don't just see the view -you command it.

You will find it, too, a car of luxurious obedience.

From the moment you ease your foot down on the pedal, you take immediate mastery of the road and of distance.

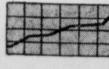

And you know it-in the silken whip of Twin-Turbine Dynaflow, the might of Buick's greatest horsepower, the magic cushioning of coil springs on all four wheels, the exhilarating ease of Buick Safety Power Steering at your hand.

But with all this, you buy with prudence when you buy a ROADMASTER.

For-though it is, and looks, custom production - it sells for the lowest price-per-pound in the fine-car field. And so wise an investment makes you feel even more like the man

Communist Rule Can Happen Here

That the Guatemalan revolution is not of concern only to Guatemalans is proved by support which the government there is receiving from the Soviet Union, not only in unofficial statements but by Russia's attitude in the deliberations of the United Nations. Moscow is involved in Guatemala and sees in conditions there an opportunity to further its aspirations in this

While American sympathies lie naturally with the liberation forces, Washington is avoiding unilateral action to assist in toppling the Red-tinged regime from power in Guatemala City.

Uprisings in Latin America were common in the past, but this is the first in which communism and Russia were the main issues. The Guatemalan government's close ties to Moscow were revealed a month ago with arrival of a boat load of arms from behind the iron curtain in Guatemala.

Events leading up to the present uprising date back to 1944, when another revolt overthrew an authoritarian dictator who had been in power for more than a generation. President Arevalo made half-hearted attempts to suppress the Communist party, and while he remained in office Communist infiltration was relatively modest.

In 1951 he was replaced by President Arbenz, a dedicated "liberal," who sought Communist aid to consolidate his own power. A year earlier his principal political rival and head of the nation's armed forces, Colonel Arana, was assassinated by men in a car driven by Arbenz' chauffeur, and Col. Castillo Armas, closely associated with Arana, was removed from his post, attempted an abortive uprising, and fled into exile.

Now it is Castillo Armas, back from exile, who led the anti-Communist revolt.

Guatemala provides the answer to the question of whether Communists can take over governments in this hemisphere by infiltration. They have done so. Any government which is soft toward the Communist treason is inviting its own extinction.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

They Can't Understand Us

When countries are allied to each other, it is necessary for them to understand each other. They need to recognize not only that there are differences in approach and manner but also that where there are apparent similarities, the end objectives may not be the same. That the United States is misunderstood is obvious from the increasing

John J. McCloy, after he had served his term as High Commissioner for Germany, said:

"The advantages of the American system and its departures from the backward capitalism which has in the past characterized European life are largely unknown among the rank and file of Socialists of Europe. Moreover, the very fact that the American economy has been successful in distributing its advantages in a classless manner stirs some of the doctrinaire Socialists into a sort of ideological excitement of antagonisms that cannot be ignored. This is one of the basic problems facing American representation abroad and it is one which must be dealt

The Socialists to whom McCloy refers are anti-Communists and should be our allies. They cannot believe that the United States has achieved its high productivity in a classless society because they have never witnessed such a society.

In Asia, the misunderstanding is even greater. When it is stated that we employ more than 60,000,000 people without exploitation, that our wage scale even in industrial establishments is equivalent to upper middle-class annual earnings, that laborers own their own automobiles, electrical refrigerators, television sets, etc., it is not believed because it has not been experienced in those countries. In Buddhist countries, this lack of belief is complicated by a worship of poverty. Men's souls are not saved by the possession of material things but by the rejection of material things. Did not Gautama himself give up the wealth of a prince to sit under a banyan tree,

How to state the American case so that it will be understood is not anything that can be reached by a snap formula. McCloy faced the difficulty when he said: This thinking has cut deep into areas where one would imagine that America would find widest understanding. I have in mind particularly the European Socialists, who have developed a certain coolness toward the U.S. This is disturbing because the Socialist movement is old and established in Europe and because large segments among the Socialists are liberal-minded indi-

In the United States today there is no effective Socialist Party unless the A.D.A. (Americans for Democratic Action) is regarded as such. The old Norman Thomas Socialists have disappeared. With the exception of the Rand School and the magazine, "The New Leader," no Socialist voice exists. The Socialist Labor Party has become a fractional splinter group of no significance.

The A.D.A., while it gives the general impression of being somewhat like the Fabian Socialists of Great Britain, controls no political party and has a voice in Congress only as a faction of the Democratic Party. A.D.A. Democrats and liberal Republicans are so close to each other that it is impossible to distinguish between them in ideas, just as conservative Democrats and liberal Republicans are so close to each other that it is impossible to distinguish between them in ideas, just as conservative Democrats and Republicans are normal American traditionalists. Actually, the line of demarcation between the Parties in the United States is political rather than

Thus the European finds it extremely difficult to understand what the American political system really is. The European Socialist parties in Europe are old and established and respectable. The word Socialist appended to a political party's name is not descriptive of radicalism; it might even denote a fairly conservative party which bases itself on social consciousness rather than on Marxism.

For instance, in France, the great party of the "Third Republic." the party that is now in power under Pierre Mendes France, and whose leaders included such figures as Edouard Herriot, Rene Mayer, Henri Queuille, and Edouard Daladier, goes by the name of the Radical Socialist Party. By our standards this party would be regarded as fairly conservative, about in the center between the Communists and the De Gaullists. In Italy, the Social Movement is faithful to the memory of Mussolini.

The point is that names do not count; only ideas are descriptive of men's purposes and methods. The Europeans are as puzzled about our politics as about our social and economic systems and shy away from what they do not

Republican, Democratic Congressmen Depressed By Far Eastern Problems

Democratic congressmen who attended the recent White House briefing on Far Eastern problems came away with a depressed feeling. The depression, they said, was not so much because the situation was grave but because the administration didn't seem to know what to do about it.

The closed-door session gives significant insight into how Eisenhower and Dulles were thinking during their talks with Churchill. President Eisenhower started the briefing with a short pep talk in which he called for bipartisan support. Then he introduced Undersecretary of State W. Bedell Smith, just back from the Geneva

Gloomily, Smith reported that France is ready to accept an Indochina cease-fire at any price, and we will probably have to go along with it. Inasmuch as we dictated the armistice terms in Korea on the ground that our boys were doing the fighting, the French are now insisting on fixing the terms in Indochina for the same

The United States, the undersecretary of state told the senators, is prepared to draw a "fighting line" in Indochina, which would embrace Laos, Cambodia, and part of Vietnam. And if the Reds cross that line, the United States would be willing to fight. Smith left the impression, however, that the Reds would demand occupation of all Vietnam-the wealthiest and most populated part of Indochina-and that the French would let them get away with it.

Secretary Dulles spoke up during

Wide Gap Still Exists Between America And Britain

WASHINGTON - Sir Wipston Churchill came and he spoke -and he made a profound impression. It would be wrong to say he "conquered" the criticism or opposition here, because there still is a wide gap which requires further explanation and perhaps extended debate.

Basically the British prime minister revealed more of his point of view in his answers to questions in his talk to the Washington correspondents than he did in the carefully worded document issued from the White House as a joint statement with President Eisen-

The Churchill philosophy in brief is this: Why not try reasongovernment? Why not try to open more contacts with the Russians and hope that this will mean a realization by the Russian people of the benefits that are enjoyed by the people on this side of the iron curtain? Would Retain Vigilance

It is a tempting formula, and there is a plausible logic behind such an approach. The trouble, however, is that it has been tried and found wanting. Again and again since 1945 the Western powers have endeavored to reason with the Communists or have made concessions in the hope of gaining something reciprocal. But the end result has been disappointing, and the Communists today are marching to victory after victory as they add more and more millions of in the Gubernatorial Futurity. people to their sphere of domina-

What the British prime minister says, in effect, is that, despite previous setbacks, it is the duty of the free world to go on trying for peace through reason. But he adds a word, "vigilance." This means he wouldn't let his guard down. It explains what he meant when he said: "We will press forward with plans for collective defense. The difficulty with the Churchillian phrase "peace with strength" is that America is expected to furnish all the strength while the Communists refuse to furnish any of the peace. The British and French see no risk in temporizing with communism and By David Lawrence

Isn't that something which the rulers in the Kremlin will decide as they continue their restrictions on the national economy even while they build up armament? How much influence can the Allies have on internal policies Russia if they repudiate the "liberation" philsosphy expressed so ably by Secretary Dulles?

Free Hand Needed Among the topics discussed by the President and the prime minister is the possible veto by Britain of the use of the atom bomb or hydrogen bomb by the United States in time of war. The British want America to "consult" before dropping a bomb. But there is no evidence as yet that Communists will "consult" anybody before they drop one, and there may not be time to have a parliamentary debate or a huddle in London if certain American cities have been destroyed. The logical answer is: "Consult, yes, if there is time, but the United States must retain a free hand to retaliate as she can if an attack is made directly on the territory of this country.' Because of the many grave problems that have been tackled forthrightly in the Churchill-Eisenhower conference here, it is a good thing that the exchange of views has occurred, but the fundamental viewpoints have not been altered very much - and future events alone can test whether a further try at "reasoning" with the Communists will yield any result. Certainly there can be no objection to more talk - provided the Communists don't gobble up a few more Latin-American countries and more territory in Southeast Asia while the Western Allies are pleading with Satan to be reasonable.

Only senator who fired any really hot questions at Smith and Dulles was Knowland of California, the Republican Senate leader. The Democrats asked few questions and there was no apparent desire to embarrass the administration.

Senator Knowland, however, questioned Smith rather sharply as to where the final "fighting line" will be drawn in Indochina. If we draw a fighting line now, and proclaim that we will fight at that line, would we not draw another line later. Knowland asked, and then retreat still farther to another line? Smith and Secretary Dulles never gave him a direct answer. They talked around in circles.

Guard Your Freedom

By Bob Considine

NEW YORK, (INS)-Then there was the clever Chinese farmer who found a way to outwit his cruel masters, Episcopal Bishop Quentin Huang told the Overseas Press Club luncheon.

"He took his surplus rice, ground it into a fine powder, mixed it with water and plastered the rooms of his little home," the Bishop related. 'The Communists searched his place for days but could not find hidden rice and at last went away. And then the hungry family could, in safety, eat its walls."

The Bishop, author of "Now I Can Tell," (Morehouse-Gorham) an account of his experience while a prisoner of his Communist fellow countrymen, had only this one story to tell wherein right prevailed over might in present-day China. The remainder was a sobering eyewitness account of what is going on behind the bamboo curtain.

"When they came to my city," said Bishop Huang, part of whose education was gained at the University of Pennsylvania, "the worst weapon they carried was a wooden box. This box, and four others like it, were placed in as many sections of the city-in public ed. He asked only that the pupil. places. 'Secret boxes,' they were in the course of the division, re-

"The people were told that if they knew of anything derogatory about someone else in that city they should write that man or woman's name on a slip of paper, and the nature of the charge, and place it in the 'secret box.' The accusers did not have to sign their own names.

"The boxes were filled almost immediately, and all whose names appeared therein were arrested. The enemy feels it is better to punish ten thousand innocent rather than let one guilty person go free."

The Bishop dwelt at some length on why a nation of more than 400,000,000 normally independent humans bowed so quickly to Communist rule. He spoke of the shattered morale of the land after years of war with Japan and suspicion of Chiang Kai-Shek's rule. ("It was far from ideal, but the best we had.") He did not except failures of the ministry, in his list of factors leading to the fall of

He said the great strength of the Communist was their ability to make the Chinese people believe steadfastly in one prime promise: Land reform. Every man was to have enough to feed him and his family; the great estates were to be broken up and distributed among the poor. A tenant farmer no longer would have to give 50 per cent of the rice to the rich man on the hill. Instead, he could keep 85 per cent for himself and pay only 15 per cent to the new government.

"Landlords became a haunted group, no matter how benevolent," the Bishop told assembled correspondents. "Each landlord's gate was marked with a sign reading. "Cruel, Despot Landlord." Neither he nor his family could leave the house except for food or medical care. If he ventured out, he had to wear a sign similar to the one on "A certain teacher and landlord, sensing what was coming, went to one of his old pupils and asked the pupil, a man of poor means who had joined the communist cause, to divide the land the teacher ownmember him - the donor - and leave him enough to live on. This was done. But the pupil was disciplined because the land had been divided without recourse to a class struggle. The old teacher and landlord was haled before the peoples court and stoned to death. Before my escape I knew of no one who appeared before a peoples court and did not receive the death

"The 15 per cent lien became 20 per cent and was expanded to embrace all of the farmer's goods. not just his rice but even the firewood he collected in the hills and the water he drew from the well. And more: All his rice had to be given to the government depot and he could withdraw only enough on which to live-provided, of course, he caused the authorities no trouble between withdrawals.

"Guard your freedom," Bishop Huang exhorted his listeners. "We never knew what a precious thing It is until we lost it.'

These groups base their decisions on the safety of a product when it is used according to directions. They also realize that some preparations might be dangerous when individuals are exposed to small amounts for a long period of time.

Field crop dusting with insecticides via the air, which has become a common practice, has created several problems. In the past, it took two men with a ground sprayer two days to cover 100 acres; an airplane performs the same task in 12 minutes. The saving in time and man power is obvious but the risk is greater, particularly when the more effective yet highly toxic organic phosphorus preparations are utilized.

When -the compound is sprayed, some is bound to reach the cockpit and exterior of the aircraft and those who touch or inhale the chemical are in constant danger of being poisoned. In Connecticut, for example, the law will not license the pilot for spraying of this insecticide unless he submits to a blood examination for cholinesterase at weekly intervals during the season. Reduction in the level of this substance is noted long before symptoms appear and, should this occur, the pilot or mixer is advised to stay off the job until the insecticide is eliminated from the system. FROSTBURG ARMORY WORK PROGRESSES - Stonemasons are shown placing a pre-cast facing around the side entrance of the Frostburg Armory, facing lower Consolidation Road. The facing will be eight feet wide on each side of the entrance and will extend up to the roof. Each block of stone weighs approximately 900 pounds. A similar facing will be constructed around the main entrance of the new addition to the armory, facing South Water Street. Construction is ahead of schedule and the official opening will take place early in October.

Daily Bridge Lesson

by Barclay K

DOUBLE AIDS YOUR SIDE AS AGAINST the times that a business double of the opponents' contract helps them to make it, are the occasions on which it causes a lead which defeats them. Long before the invention of doubling a slam contract so as to cause an unorthodox lead, there was the natural lead-guiding use of a double by a player who wanted his own suit opened. Conversely, his failure to double a certain contract may not merely mean that he doesn't feel confident it can be beaten. It may imply that perhaps some other lead would be better.

The bidding of this deal was identical at both tables of a team match, except that one North did not double the spade game. That decided the issue, as one declarer was set two tricks, whereas the other made his contract Where North doubled, South obediently led his suit, the diamond K, which the A won. East

t ones, then led the club 9, which brought the 2, 10 and A. North returned the diamond Q, which won, and then the J, which East ruffed. The declarer then had to lead hearts from his own hand, so lost three tricks in the suit. South avoided his partner's diamond suit where there was no double, preferring the club 6, which brought the 10 and A. Seeing the club K established in dummy, North was afraid to lead back a diamond, which would give declarer a chance to use that card for a discard. He therefore scored his heart K and A to make sure they would not go to waste. It is easy to see that this enabled East to get the rest of the tricks and so make his contract. That South player then commented that a double by North would have caused him to lead his partner's suit, whereas lack of it impelled him to avoid the diamonds.

(Dealer: South, Both sides vulnerable.)

Mayor, Council Hold Caucus At City Hall

Installation Set Tuesday Morning

The newly elected Mayor and Council met in City Hall last night for a pre-election caucus.

Informed sources said the body did not come to a decision on the that all were expected to agree on the reappointment of Thomas B. Finan as city attorney.

The inauguration of the new Mayor and Council will be held Tuesday morning. Plans made last night provided for the following

The present council will meet in the office of Mayor Roy W. Eves Tuesday at 9 a. m. for its regular executive session, devoted to discussion of action to be taken at the council meeting.

The newly elected council will meet at 9:30 a. m. for its first precouncil executive session.

At 10 a. m., the outgoing Council will hold its last meeting, which will be devoted to the disposition of "odds and ends" business needed to close the fiscal year.

Immediately after this council session, the newly elected officers will be installed at an informal ceremony in City Hall Auditorium. Taking office will be Mayor Roy

W. Eves, to begin his second term and William V. Keegan, William J. Edwards, William H. Buchholtz and John J. Long.
